WHO IS NATIONAL ALLERGY?

National Allergy® is one of the largest suppliers of allergy and asthma-friendly products for personal use. Our goal is to help you make your home a place to breathe easy.

In 1988, six-year-old Katie suffered from multiple airborne allergies. Her doctor recommended specialty products. Those products were tough to track down. Katie's parents, Ryner and Evelyn, found them all and the doctor was right. They worked! The Wittigens were inspired to start a company to sell the products to consumers nationwide.

Today, allergists across the country refer their patients to National Allergy for trusted products that will give them drug-free relief from their symptoms. National Allergy and its partners team with physicians to study allergy prevention and treatment. Together, they create informative materials for allergists to distribute. Dr. Donald Gilner says, "National Allergy is a company I've learned to trust because they are so helpful in the care of my patients."

From basement to bedroom, showering to sleeping, National Allergy offers products for every part of your daily routine. Kim, a long-time allergy patient and customer says, "It's refreshing to know there is a company out there that has the products to make me well."

Many products promise to help control allergens, but some products make false or exaggerated claims. The Certification Program helps consumers make informed decisions. When you see the asthma & allergy friendly[®] Mark on a household product or service, you'll know it's been laboratory tested and verified by our Certification Program as better suited for those impacted by asthma and allergies.

About the asthma & allergy friendly[®] Certification Program:

- The Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America created the program in partnership with the international standards body Allergy Standards Limited
- Independent, scientific tests identify consumer products and services that are more suitable for people living with asthma and allergies

WHY THE MARK MATTERS

More than 70 million Americans suffer from asthma and allergies – that's nearly 50% of U.S. households affected by indoor allergens. The Certification Mark gives third-party validation to product claims and messaging, giving you peace of mind as you make smart choices for a healthier home.

THE SCIENCE BEHIND THE MARK

In order to receive the Certification Mark, a product or service must undergo and pass through a rigorous series of proprietary lab tests – proving they help reduce exposure to allergens and irritants, provide increased environmental control and withstand routine cleaning and care guidelines.

AIR PURIFIERS

Clean air should be an essential part of any home. HEPA room air purifiers use special filters to reduce levels of airborne allergens, like dust and pollen. They also reduce harmful chemicals and poor odors that can make your home uninviting. These allergens can cause negative health effects. According to the EPA, "Gas and particles in the air are the primary cause of indoor air quality problems in the home."

Our HEPA room air purifiers significantly reduce your family's and your house guests' exposure to those allergy triggering air particles. Each certified HEPA filter lasts for 5 years, providing you with added savings when you don't need to purchase replacements more frequently. These room air purifiers are the right match for the health-conscious homeowner.

Choosing the right size...

When selecting your air purifier, it's important to pick the right size for the designated space. If you have a smaller home, why waste energy and raise your utility bills with a powerful model intended for larger spaces? If you are purifying the air in a bigger space, a stronger model will be more helpful. An air filter's Clean Air Delivery Rate measures its efficiency, so look for models with a high CADR.

Trust the Blueair name for top-of-the-line air purifiers. The Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers certifies these products. They are Energy-Star and CADR rated, efficiently filling your home with clean, allergen free air.

Quiet technology lets them run without interfering with the rest of your life. You value your family's health. Give them a home environment that's free of irritating airborne particles and let them breathe easier.

Why invest in an air purifier?

You want to do everything in your power to make your home a safe place. The EPA named indoor air pollution as a top 5 health risk. Air purifiers benefit allergy and asthma sufferers by removing toxic particles from the air.

But don't the filters in your HVAC system already do that? Yes, but personal air filtration systems add that extra layer of protection for you, your family and your house guests. These stand-alone HEPA air purifiers filter 99.97% of airborne particles, including smoke, pollen, dust mites, and pet dander. Unlike HVAC filters, no need to buy replacement filters for personal systems every 3 months.

For allergy and asthma sufferers, the choice is clear. A study by leading allergy researchers showed installing personal air filtration systems in bedrooms and living rooms of 30 adult asthmatics reduced the frequency of asthma symptoms that needed medical treatment. Their allergen levels also improved.

If that's not enough, air purifiers are also a good investment for your heart. Another study compared the blood pressure rates of otherwise healthy people after 48 hours of using either a true filter or a placebo. Those exposed to the real filter had lower blood pressure.
